WENT ON HIDDEN ROCK

Mail Steamer City of Rio De Janeiro Sinks in the Golden Gate.

It is Thought Nearly 150 Persons on Board Met Death in the Water.

SHE WENT DOWN DURING DENSE FOG.

Among the Passengers Were United States Consul Waldman, Wife and Two Children.

They Have Not Been Accounted For and it is Feared They Are Among Those Who Perished.

There Were 251 People on Board the Rio De Janeiro, Only 178 of Whom Have Been Accounted For.

San Francisco, Feb. 25.—The Pacific mail steamer City of Rio de Janeiro ran on a hidden rock, west of the Golden Gate early Friday morning in dense fog. She sank a few minutes after striking. It is thought nearly 150 persons were drowned, but it is impossible to ascertain the exact number owing to the fact that several persons, who had the passenger list and roster of the crew, are among the missing.

At 7 o'clock Friday afternoon the last fast passenger ship, the City of Rio de Janeiro, was seen. It was a white woman, one white man and seven Chinese. The most prominent passenger was the Honorable Consul Waldman, who was accompanied by his wife and two children. It is thought all were drowned. The ship was in command of Pilot Jordan when she struck. He was rescued. Capt. Wm. Ward went down with his vessel.

As quickly as it was heard there were 251 people on board the Rio de Janeiro as follows: 120 Chinese passengers, 100 second cabin, 10 stowaways (Chinese and Japanese), 25 Officers and crew, 100, Total, 251. The following have been accounted for: 120 Chinese, 100 second cabin, at the morgue, 100, Total, 220. Missing, 31.

The Rio de Janeiro was three days overdue from Hong Kong. It was seen when it arrived off the head Thursday night, and the Chinese freighter at the head of the harbor. Jordan to bring her to anchor until he could see his way clear through the gateway. She hid to until about 4:30 o'clock, when the atmosphere cleared and she started under a slow bell toward Point Bonita. All went well until 5:15, when the ship struck. Most of the passengers were below at the time, and it is believed that many of them were drowned in their berths.

The first news of the disaster reached here at 7:30 p. m. The steamer was seen and several passengers and petty officers arrived at the dock.

They were immediately dispatched to render aid. It was not until 10 o'clock that it was ascertained that no living persons were aboard when the ship struck. A number of floating people were rescued by Italian fishermen and the bodies of two white women, three Chinese and a Japanese were brought in by the Italian fishermen. All bodies have been recovered.

All accounts show that the officers gave the necessary orders with the least possible delay. Capt. Ward, who was on deck when the vessel struck, gave orders to the crew on watch to hurry the passengers to the forward end, and with the same time the quartermaster on duty sounded the signal for fire drill, and within five minutes the crew were at their stations. There was no way of knowing the extent of the disaster until the vessel was seen to sink. It took 15 minutes after striking the rock. But Capt. Ward, with the instinct of long experience, knew the greatest danger threatened the 250 souls in his charge, and, putting the deck, he gave orders to lower the life boats and rafts.

There was no such confusion until 15 minutes after striking, the bow of the vessel suddenly plunged under water. Then there was a wild rush for the life boats and rafts, and already been lowered and others were getting away as rapidly as the trained discipline of the crew could permit. A thick fog enveloped everything, and as yet no sign had come from the life saving station. Darkness was all about, and with this added horror the people on the Rio had to cope.

One boat got clear of the vessel without damage. This contained the following persons:

Mr. Yost, Mrs. Ripley, Chief Engineer Herlihy, Second Officer Coglian, Frank Crump, J. R. Russell, Storekeeper Borge, Water Tender H. Lane, Quartermaster J. M. Matthews and Capt. Keck, of the German navy.

The boat got clear of the sinking vessel and then started on its way, picking up those who had no time to get into the boats and were in the water.

Another boat, containing Third Officer Holland and J. F. Carpenter, got away, but was drifted around close up under the sinking vessel. Turkish soldiers were killed and several plunged downward the proceeded the small boat and out it in two. The two men in the boat were uninjured and swam away from the sinking steamer just in time to avoid being caught in the vortex of water caused by the setting of the big ship. Carpenter was picked up by the other boat. The fate of Holland is not known, but he is supposed to have perished.

A number of Italian fishermen, who were just starting out, saw the sinking of the Rio and hastened to give all the assistance in their power. While all this was going on Capt. Ward was directing the passengers and trying to keep them from panic. He succeeded only partly, as many of the terrified people rushed to the railings and jumped overboard. Some of those were picked up, others were drowned. The Chinese crew, to the number of over a hundred, were terrified. Some of them huddled in life groups, chattering in fear. Others crunched over to the deck, moaning pitifully. Many jumped into the sea.

Capt. Ward remained on deck until the vessel had settled to rest, and then he saw that the water was engulfing him. Then he went up on the bridge and told all persons on board to take directions, although by this time the confusion was so great that few paid any attention to his commands.

That the steamer sank, and immediately after striking is the report of a majority of those rescued. Some of the passengers say that she instantly listed forward, and that in five minutes she went down, while others declare that she stayed afloat for half an hour after she struck. The confusion occasioned by such an incident is intense and it is not surprising to find that there is a lack of unanimity as to the length of time the vessel remained afloat.

The wreck lies about three-fourths of a mile south of Point Bonita, about a thousand yards off the rocky shore.

The smoke stack and a portion of the upper works of the ill-fated steamer are visible. There are several conflicting stories concerning the fate of Capt. Ward. The steward of the Rio says that he heard from the captain that the vessel went down. Two other survivors say that they also saw the captain. The quartermaster officer of the Rio, emphatically declared that Capt. Ward climbed Aft, from, her life boat, and that he was in going down to his cabin, where he met his doom behind a locked door.

Quartermaster Officer Lindstrom was one of the last to leave the ship. He was on the deck when the vessel struck. He saw the captain go down. He saw the captain go down. He saw the captain go down.

He was standing on the deck when the vessel struck upon the rocks. There was a cry of "My Boat!" but it was apparent that in the midst of the awful confusion a systematic effort to save the passengers would be impossible.

It was at this time that Lindstrom saw that Capt. Ward standing on the forward end of the ship, and he saw him fall overboard.

He saw the captain, and walking hurriedly to his cabin, disappeared behind the door, which he closed.

A second later the vessel was plunging to the bottom of the sea.

Capt. Frederick W. Jordan, the pilot of the Rio de Janeiro, was an Italian fisherman who was in the Italian fishing boat owned by Fredrick Castelli, and was brought to the station about 10 a. m. Along with him was a Japanese and Philip Nymblek.

William Casper, of Toledo, O., was among the survivors, while those being in the water. He was with the first alarm given. He agreed with Long that most of the steamer's passengers were on deck when the vessel struck. The steamer's captain was valued at over $50,000. There were besides $50,000 in treasure in the specie bank. The steamer's cargo was valued at from $450,000 to $500,000.

An increase of more than 100 per cent. In the money of the world is less than a quarter of the increase in the annual report of the director of the Mint. Nearly the whole of this increase is in metallic money and much the larger portion of this is in gold. The gold reported in 1873 was about $4,600,000,000. More than half of this was in paper money, and the balance was in gold reserve. The situation at the beginning of 1900 showed a total monetary stock of $10,000,000,000, of which only a little more than one-fourth was in uncovered paper money, says the director.

Director Roberts finds that, while the money supply of the world has increased from $2,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000, the increase in gold money has been about $4,600,000,000; in silver, about $2,700,000,000; and in uncovered paper money, about $2,700,000,000.

A large proportion of the increase in gold has taken place within the short space of twenty years. The total amount of silver money, which is at its maximum of about $4,250,000,000 at the beginning of this century, has been somewhat reduced by the retirement of silver by Germany and its retirement in other countries. The conditions of 1893 showed a total of $3,000,000,000, of which about $10,200,000,000, which has since been increased by about $1,100,000,000, has been added. This increase has been in gold money.

A Good Cough Medicine For Children.
 "I have no hesitancy in recommending Chamberlin's Cough Remedy," says F. P. Moran, a well known and popular baker of Petersburg, Va. "We have given it to our children when troubled with bad coughs, also whooping cough, and it has always given perfect satisfaction. It was recommended to me by a druggist as the best cough medicine for children as it contained no opium or other harmful drug." Sold by Cowgill and Cowgill, Hickman, and A. M. Shaw, State Line, Ky.
